PROCLAMATION

Today, with new interests, new responsibilities and new ways of doing things, we are aware that woman's place in the world is changing. Her activities, viewed in the light of the traditional ideas of her sphere fifty or sixty years ago, indicate a marked advance. At that time practically all doors to the business world were closed to women. Now the reverse is true—practically all doors are open. The patience, accuracy, deft manipulation and attention to detail so necessary in business are all womanly attributes. Women have always been pioneers, keeping step with the men—often going ahead of them—and they are steadily advancing, in political and economic realms.

They have great goals: crime abatement; better housing; planning communities; better education, and more integrity in public office. Not only business and professional women are called on for a contribution to citizenship but the women in the homes are charged also with the moral responsibility of encouraging and inspiring men to keep steadily climbing toward higher social goals.

The week of March 14 to 20 is being observed by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., as "National Business Women's Week."

In order that special thought may be given to the vital place which women occupy, I, Leslie Jensen, Governor of the State of South Dakota, do hereby designate March 14 to 20, 1927, as NATIONAL BUSINESS WOMEN'S WEEK.

I urge that everyone give serious consideration to the business of citizenship, to the end that those in our home, our own land and throughout the whole world, may have a better place in which to live.
